

Get rid of surplus stock while helping those in need.

Takeaway has never meant so much to businesses like yours. But it could also mean so much to people in your community who are doing it tough.

There's no doubt that COVID-19 has impacted the hospitality industry. But it's also creating holes in our nation's food relief network as well. That's why Foodbank, Australia's largest food relief organisation, has partnered with food waste app, Y Waste, to help give restaurants like yours a way to donate excess meals at the end of the day to people who need it.

How it works

A food merchant has perfectly good meals that they cannot sell and want to donate to someone in need. They put a notice on the Y Waste App.

A charity knows of someone who is in need of food assistance. It provides them with a special code to use in the Y Waste App.

The person downloads the Y Waste App onto their phone and registers using their special code so they can see the donated meals available in their area and claim one.

The person goes to the outlet during the time specified by the merchant and collects their meal by showing the receipt on their phone.

It's free to sign up and you decide how many meals to give away. Download Y Waste today, or visit foodbank.org.au/ywaste for more info. Help us take away the hunger of those in need.
